CHINA TEA

Business Smaller Buying Halted Stocks At Hand

THE business passing now in China tea is very much smaller than obtained a month or six weeks ago. The American and European markets seem alarmed at the comparatively excessive export figure, and this has had the effect of halting further general buying unless confirmed orders are to hand.

Present stocks of China tea in Shanghai and Hankow and elsewhere contain but a small percentage of really high quality tea, the bulk being rough leafed and indifferent quality. Considerable business has taken place in green teas both in Pingsueys for America and country teas for the North African markets. Prices show a decline on last month's rates, but Pingsueys are at the moment firmer, whilst country greens with the exception of certain grades show still an easier tendency.

Owing to the first crop of black tea having been snapped up quickly, the Chinese tea growers were encouraged to go in for intensive growing. As a result, the second and third crops have been better, and the production much greater than expected at first. There have been fairly heavy arrivals of the second and third crop black teas, but the quality is inferior to that of the first crop. Consequently, holders are experiencing difficulty in realising the old prices, and there is also in evidence a desire to sell out at even lower than market rates. Superior grades can fetch good prices and there is very little change in values in this respect. Poor quality black teas have slumped a tael and a half per pound.

BLACK TEA STOCKS

Stocks of black teas from the Hankow district are pretty heavy, being estimated to be at about 45,000 half-chests of the first, second and third crops. Of Wenchow and Ningchow grades stocks are not large, in the case of the former it being estimated at 3,000 half-chests and of Ningchow some 10,000 half-chests. Since the opening of the season the arrivals of Ningchow have amounted to 41,000 half-chests, of Wenchow 17,000 half-chests and Hankow 391,000 half-chests. Stocks are lower now than at any time since the opening of the season, due to the recent heavier sales.

There is a very large movement of China tea to India. From the beginning of the season up till the end of September India took from Shanghai 683,188 pounds of black tea and 2,716,523 pounds of green Chinese tea, against 516,261 pounds of black and 1,964,128 pounds of green during the same period in season 1922-1923. The exports from Shanghai to India in the same period of 1921-1922 season were 20,397 pounds of black and 810,397 pounds of green tea. The development in this direction has, therefore, been very large, and it is likely to be better.

EXPORTS GROW

China is now able to supply to England many million pounds of good tea at prices lower than the Indian and Ceylon producers can effect. The exports of China tea to England and the Continent have grown remarkably. From the beginning of the season up till the end of September last Shanghai sent to Europe and the Continent 13,786,601 pounds of black and green teas, while at the corresponding date last season the importations into England and the Continent of China tea amount to only 2,466,904 pounds.

From the beginning of the season up till the end of September the shipments of tea comprised 10,480,513 pounds of black teas to England and 2,337,163 pounds of black teas to the Continental markets, while in the case of green teas the exports to England reached the total of 349,197 pounds and to the Continent 629,728 pounds. The demand for black teas this season both from the Continental markets and from the United Kingdom has been enormous, in the case of Great Britain it was three times as much as last season and in the case of the Continent almost twice. Then again, last season was an improvement on the previous one. The falling off has been particularly heavy in green teas, the exports to England this season being half during the same period last season and the exports to the Continent being less than a quarter.

RUSS LARGE BUYERS

Russia is a large buyer of teas, but it is difficult to know how much of the supplies consigned to continental destinations eventually find their way to that country. The export of congou tea from Shanghai to Russia via Dal-

Offers To Make Chang Vice-President, Report

CHANG IS SILENT

No Definite Reply Yet Given To Peace Overtures

(Eastern News Agency)

Mukden, Oct. 11.—A party consisting of General Pao Kuei-ching, former Minister of War, as an envoy from President Tsao Kun, General Chao Yu-ke, Chief of Staff of the Tuchun of Chihli and concurrently Defence-Commissioner of Tientsin, as a representative of General Wang Chengpin, Civil Governor of Chihli, and Mr. Yun Chang, Chief Secretary to the President, arrived here on the night of the 9th.

These delegates of the Chihli faction have conveyed President Tsao Kun's views to Marshal Chang Tso-lin, setting forth that the two families of Marshal Chang and President Tsao Kun being closely related, it was hoped that Marshal Chang would bury in oblivion the old enmity against Chihli and devote his efforts to the cause of the unification of the country.

It is authoritatively reported that President Tsao Kun has offered the Vice-Presidentship to Marshal Chang and suggested that the latter would be reinstalled in his former post of Inspector-General of the Three Eastern Provinces. Marshal Chang has not yet given his definite reply in view of the past circumstances and is maintaining a non-committal attitude. Whatever attitude the Manchurian war-lord will assume at this moment is being watched with keen interest.

It is reported that Mr. Kao Ling-wei will act as Premier of the Cabinet for the time being.

With regard to the formation of the first Cabinet following the assumption of the Presidency by Marshal Tsao Kun, rumor has it that Mr. Wu Ching-lien, Speaker of the House of Representatives, will assume the Premiership as a reward for his services in the Presidential election.

Empire Conference At London Considers Aid For Farming Interests

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 11.—The Economic Conference has appointed a committee, comprising representatives of Great Britain, the Dominions, the Colonies and India, to consider and report on the methods, suggested by Mr. S. M. Bruce, the Australian Prime Minister, of assisting marketing of Empire-grown agricultural produce, namely, subsidies, import licenses and stabilisation of prices. Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame said that the Government might be prepared to guarantee interest and capital in respect of development schemes in the Colonies and Protectorates as distinct from the Dominions.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 11.—The full meeting of the Imperial Conference has adjourned until Monday. Only committee work will be done tomorrow.

Various matters, including overseas settlement and the question of patents, were discussed today by the committees of the economic Conference, which will meet again in full session next week.

Their Majesties entertained the delegates to the Conferences with their ladies to dinner at Buckingham Palace tonight. The party included Cabinet Ministers and numbered about 60. The King and Queen mingled with their guests in the drawing-room after dinner.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 11.—At the Imperial Conference today Mr. Baldwin read the reply of the Japanese Government to the Conference's message of sympathy in connection with the earthquake, saying that the cordial sentiments of representative statesmen of the British Empire, the old and neverfailing ally of Japan, deeply moved the Japanese nation and had given it energy and reassurance in taking up the task of reconstruction.

Marquess Curzon made a statement on the political events resulting from the Janina massacre and Lord Robert Cecil reviewed the work of the League of Nations.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 10.—At the Economic Conference today, Sir Philip Lloyd-Greame announced that in order to accelerate Colonial development schemes the Government was prepared on certain conditions to advance part of the interest for a period in respect of schemes, put in hand before the normal time, which represented orders to Britain. He hoped that the requisite machinery would be devised for examining these schemes and settling terms.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain pointed out that, while it was not desirable to fix the percentage of preference to be given to the Dominions and Colonies in the placing of public contracts, Government departments had been purchasing practically all their supplies within the Empire.

RUSSIAN WOMAN AWARDED $1800 AGAINST GARAGE

Central Garage Must Pay Damages For Auto Accident

Mrs. M. S. Bialokoz, the wife of a former Russian Naval officer living at 139 Dixwell Road, was awarded $1800 damages and the costs of the proceedings from the Central Garage in a judgment handed down yesterday by Chief Judge Sir Skinner Turner in the British Supreme Court.

Mrs. Bialokoz sued for Tls. 7,500 damages and Tls. 205 and $262 special damages and medical attention. She was represented by Mr. Leonard G. Husar of Rodger & Husar and the defendants were represented by Mr. R. N. Macleod.

The action grew out of a motor car accident which occurred on Avenue Joffre on March 28, Mrs. Bialokoz was going along the road in a ricsha when, as the ricsha turned to stop at an address in Avenue Joffre, a motor car owned by the Central Garage crashed into the ricsha. Mrs. Bialokoz was thrown to the ground and received injuries from which she was unconcious for some time and claimed to be still suffering ill consequences.

The garage company denied that their chauffeur was responsible for the accident, alleging that Mrs. Bialokoz had been negligent in not giving a signal before she turned.

Sir Skinner's judgment in the case was brief. After reviewing the evidence he found that the motor car of the defendants was to blame in both speed and position.

YE CURFEW WILL NOT RING TONIGHT AT C. C. C. JINKS

Exceptional Preparations For Clubs Annual Costume Party

The only thing missing at the annual Jinks at the Columbia Country Club tonight, according to Mr. Frank Courtney, chairman of the house committee in charge of the affair, will be the curfew.

This year's Jink is expected to exceed all previous records in the creation of "fun galore" as the committee in charge has spared no expense and no trouble in making every possible preparation for a big night.

The lighting effect and interior decorations for tonight exceed in novelty and display anything that has ever been attempted in Shanghai in providing a background for a costume party. The big pavilion has been converted into a grotto with numerous arches. Above is a blue sky studed with 500 stars timed to flash off and on automatically during the evening. And the Man in The Moon is also there with an electrical wink for all the merry makers.

An 8-piece orchestra composed of the pick of the musicians from the cafe orchestra's in Shanghai has been selected to render the inspiration for the light fantastic. They will begin their syncopated jazz at 9:30 o'clock and continue from then on. No curfew.

Chow will be served all evening and the usual Jinks features, with several new attractions, will provide amusement, entertainment and mental relaxation for the tired taipans and their non-dancing wives.

Four More Armed Robberies

Armed robbers this year are making their record of 46 for the year 1922 look amateurish. Four more robberies were reported to the police yesterday, jumping this years total to date to 73 armed robberies committed within the limits of the International Settlement.

And, to judge by records contained in the annual reports of the Commissioner of Police, the armed robbery season should be just beginning instead of fast approaching the 100 mark.

The first robbery reported occured at a residence at 315 Sawgin Road where two men entered by the front door and stole a gold bangle valued at $110 from a woman. One of the robbers was arrested when an alarm was raised.

The second occured at a pawnshop at 865A East Yuhang Road. Five men, one of whom was armed with a pistol, held up the three assistants present and escaped with $29.

Five men, four of whom were armed with revolvers robbed the wine and sauce shop at 50 Tungchow Road of $240.

And two men, one of whom was armed, entered 1388 Baikal Road and escaped with $20.

During the day it was also reported that a gang of robbers broke in the front door of a house in the Yung Ziang Kong village, which is outside the Settlement, and robbed the premises and occupants of clothing and valuables worth $500.

Dr. Sun Asks Powers Not To Recognize Tsao Kun

(The following telegram was received by THE CHINA PRESS yesterday from Sun Yat-sen's headquarters in Canton).

Canton, Oct. 9.—Telegrams from all parts of China have been reaching here urging Dr. Sun Yat-sen to express in a concrete act the nation-wide opposition to and repudiation of Tsao Kun.

This afternoon, the following statement was issued and handed to the senior consul here for communication to the diplomatic body and foreign powers:

"In connection with the so-called presidential election recently held in Peking, I have specially to call the attention of the foreign powers to the nation-wide opposition to and repudiation of Tsao Kun as President of China.

"Illiterate and uneducated, he is opposed and repudiated not only because he is the man who looted Peking in February, 1912 and is mainly responsible, as the highest military officer of Shantung and other provinces, for the Lincheng incident, but chiefly because his election has been brought about under circumstances of illegality and corruption which make it an outrage to any nation with civilised habits of thought and action.

"There have been sordid transactions in history, but none equal in shamelessness to this latest attempt to seize high power. No people that will tamely acquiesce in such an act can have the right to live as a self-respecting nation.

"The Chinese people as a whole, therefore, record the election of Tsao Kun as an act of usurpation and treason which must and shall be resisted and punished. This determination of our people is immediately to find its concrete expression in a national government whose formation is now being worked out by representative leaders of the nation.

"I have to request the foreign powers and their representatives in Peking to avoid any act which could be construed by the new Peking usurper as an intimation or assurance of international recognition and support. The foreign recognition of Tsao Kun would perpetuate internecine strife and disorder and would be envisaged by the Chinese people as a frustration of their declared will regarding an act that cuts at the moral fiber of the national character.

"Sun Yat-sen."

(Eastern News Agency)

Canton, Oct. 12.—Interviewed by a representative of the Eastern News Agency, Dr. Sun Yat-sen made the following statement:

"Despite the fact that I recently issued a circular telegram, giving a warning to Tsao Kun, he has carried the presidential election through at last. I have an intention, therefore, to blame Tsao Kun for his illegal actions and to proceed with the organisation of punitive forces in order to subjugate him.

"As for the situation in the South, Hoyuan, Pingshan, and Lungmen in the district of the East River have already fallen in my hands. It is also expected that Weichow will fall before long. I am, therefore, in a position to organise forceful punitive forces against the North.

"Moreover, the Three Eastern Provinces, Hunan and Chekiang have already agreed to rise in arms for my cause against Tsao Kun. It is very strange that in connection with the election of Tsao Kun as president, certain nationals have acted as wire-pullers."

EIGHT AMERICAN WARSHIPS SAIL FOR THE SOUTH

Sixteen Others Still Here To Leave Early Next Week

Seven American warships—the Blackhawk and the destroyers Tracy, Smith-Thompson, Barker, Borie, John D. Edwards and Whipple—sailed down the Whangpoo yesterday for target practice off the Chusan Islands after which they will go to Amoy for two weeks before continuing on to their winter rendevouz at Manila.

The U.S.S. Isabel, flagship of the American Yangtsze patrol, with Rear Admiral W. W. Phelps aboard, also sailed yesterday for Hankow. Admiral Phelps is returning to his duties upriver after having been present at the transfer of command of the American Asiatic fleet from Admiral E. A. Anderson to Admiral Thomas Washington.

The departure of the destroyers and the Isabel begins the desertion of this port by American warships as the sixteen ships of the 43rd and 45th divisions are due to leave Monday or Tuesday. 1,000 men were on the ships which have left port and 2,500 are on the ships remaining. The destroyers Pope and Pillsbury, which have been upriver, returned to Shanghai yesterday to rejoin their divisions before sailing for Manila.

ANDERSON GOES

Admiral Anderson, who has been commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet, Mrs. Anderson, Captain Stearns, who has been chief-of-staff and commander of the Huron, and Mrs. Stearns, are sailing for the United States on the President Taft today.

Admiral Washington, the new commander, will remain in Shanghai on the Huron for a short time before leaving for an initial tour of inspection.

Every day during the past week the Navy 'Y' has held entertainments for the men of the fleet including teas and sukiyakis served by the ladies, concerts by the Blackhawk and Huron bands, civilian concerts and movies. The 'Y' will continue entertainments until the last ship leaves.

QUORUM LOST IN REICHSTAG IN VOTING ON DEFENSE BILL

Nationalists Walk Out After Adoption Of Two Sections

ADJOURN SESSION

Berlin Note Tells Of Stand Taken By Poincare

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 11.—When the whole Emergency Law Bill was put to the vote in the Reichstag today, the Nationalists walked out and the Reichstag adjourned till Saturday, as the necessary quorum of two-thirds of the House was not present. If the Bill is not passed the Reichstag will be dissolved.

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 11.—A semi-official note issued in Berlin gives an account of the demarches made by the German Charges d'Affaires at Brussels and Paris with M. Jaspar and M. Poincare. It states that in the course of the conversations the French Premier declared that France and Belgium proposed to settle the internal situation in the occupied territory by direct negotiations with German industry and the local German authorities. In any case, the German Government could exercise influence on the course of the negotiations by means of instructions given to the German authorities and organs in the occupied country. The French Premier was quite willing to negotiate with the German Government on the whole of its proposals as soon as passive resistance had totally ceased and calm had again been restored in the Ruhr.

The Reichstag today adopted Paragraph 1 of the Bill granting full powers to the Government by 253 votes to 97 with one abstention. Paragraph 2 was adopted shortly afterwards. When the vote on the whole bill was to be taken, the Nationalists left the hall. As there was then no quorum, the Reichstag had to adjourn until Saturday the final vote on the bill.

Mr. Filene, the well known Boston merchant, recently Director of the United States Chamber of Commerce, interviewed by representatives of the New York Times on the conclusion of his studies of the European situation, said:" No solution will be possible in Europe without well-wishing understanding of the fears and needs of the French. France, whose industry was ruined by the war, has a right to reparations and deliveries of coal from the Ruhr. It is an essential condition of a lasting agreement with Germany. The first and most important decision which can be taken to solve the situation consists in giving France an assurance that she would obtain efficacious aid in the event of her being attacked by a reconstituted Germany."

The New York Times and the New York Herald emphasise the growing importance of purchases from the United States by German merchants in spite of the continued fall of the mark. Germany has spent $721,500,000 in the United States in the course of the last eight months, holding the first place amongst buyers of cotton. American bankers declare that they cannot quite understand how the Germans can procure sufficient funds for these purchases.

The American newspapers announce that the United States will not be represented officially at the next Customs Conference at Geneva, but it will send a party of three observers to express the American point of view and to learn that of the other nations represented.

Oklahoma City, Oct. 11.—Governor Walton of Oklahoma today offered to resign as chief executive of the state provided that the legislature would pledge itself to adopt means at its next session for the complete supression of the Ku Klux Klan in Oklahoma. DUTCH CHAMBER NEAR CRISIS ON FLEET DISPUTE

Building Of New Ships Fought By Social Democrat Members

(Reuter's Service)

The Hague, Oct. 11.—In the Second Chamber of the States General today M. Troelstra, the head of the Social Democrats, interpellated the Government with reference to the crisis caused by the decision to introduce immediately a Bill for the construction of a fleet for the defence of the Dutch East Indies. He asked if the international situation justified the unexpected haste or if anything had happened behind the scenes.

Jonkheer van Beerenbrouck, the Premier, replied that there was no question of foreign pressure or of diplomatic obligations. It was solely in order that Holland might execute her obligations of neutrality towards the Indies that she required a fleet.

Dr. Colyn, the Minister of Finance, pointed out that the Bill did not increase the burdens of the Budget of the Netherlands but only of the Budget for the Indies.

Motor Car Skids Into Window Of Russ Consulate

Motor car number 1606 indulged in a little prank opposite the Astor House yesterday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock that should serve as a warning to many Shanghai drivers when making the Astor House turn.

The crossing at Whangpoo Road had just been sprinkled and the motor car, turning from the Garden Bridge to go down the Whangpoo Road, which slopes just at that point, skidded.

Sliding clear across the street it jumped over the sidewalk and crashed against the Russian Consulate. The Consulate has several sidewalk level windows and one wheel of the car jammed in one of the windows, necessitating twenty minutes work before the car could be pulled back into the street.

Air Flivver Sets New Speed Record

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 11.—The weather was fairly good at Lympne today, when Captain MacMillan, on a Parnell-Pixie Machine, broke the speed record of 66½ miles an hour, covering 25 miles at an average speed of 76.1 miles.

Flight-Lieutenant Longton rounded the course on a petrol consumption equivalent to a gallon for 87½ miles, equalling Jimmy James's record.

Up to the present, Mr. Hinkler has completed 812 miles, maintaining his lead in the reliability test. It is calculated that this means that it is possible for a pilot to fly from London to Rome on an expenditure of 20 shillings for fuel.

Photographing Sun's Eclipse

SCIENTISTS from all parts of the world flocked to southern California to study the total eclipse of the sun that occurred there on September 10, the first time the phenomenon has been visible in the United States in 54 years. Most of the photographs were taken at the Theosophical headquarters at Point Loma, near San Diego, where the eclipse was visible for 2 minutes and 43 seconds. All the delicate instruments from the Mount Wilson Observatory were set up there. Dr. Oliver J. Lee set up his coelostate for reflecting light of the sun to the lens of his camera at Catalina Island. The equatorial mounting (of two telescopes) was set up there to photograph the eclipse.

RUSSIAN WOMEN ARE ACCUSED OF MURDER ATTEMPT

The two Russian women, Mrs. A. M. Sprage and Mrs. Helene Pelkoff, charged with assaulting Mrs. Valfe Dudeck at 21 Miller Road last month were brought before Assessor Ivanoff and Magistrate Tsang at the Mixed Court yesterday when the charge was amended to one of attempted murder.

The complainant appeared in court with her head heavily bandaged. Evidence of arrest was given by Detective Sergeants Schmidt and Papp and the case was remanded for special hearing.

The assault is alleged by the complainant to have arisen out of the mortgaging by her to the second accused of some new garments. She says she refused to redeem them because she saw the accused wearing them and that a quarrel and fight followed. The police aver that all three are undesirable citizens.

Wandering Journalist Again In Far East

Mr. Joseph T. Mannix, better known to newspapermen throughout the world as "Joe" Mannix, is paying Shanghai one of the visits which he accords ports of the Far East every few years.

Mr. Mannix is what might be termed a universal journalist. He hails from Minneapolis, Minnesota, but the wide world is his assignment and he wanders from land to land, a keen and kindly observer of peoples and places.

This is Mr. Mannix's third trip touching the Far East. He first came out during the late nineties and was in this part of the world again in 1919. Since that time he has covered something like 60,000 miles of territory, visiting Australia, Java, New Zealand and practically all parts of Africa.

Mr. Mannix expects to be in Shanghai for a few days and will then go to Peking and other points in the North.

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Oct. 10.—The Prince Regent today repaired to Yokohama where he made an inspection of conditions subsequent upon the catastrophe. To each grave-mark of the foreign victims in Yokohama, His Royal Highness paid a salute, and he personally returned cordial thanks to the American Relief Hospital and other foreign relief organisations.

Earthquake Films Screened At Local Japanese Club

Three reels of motion pictures showing in graphic detail the devastation created by the earthquake in Tokio and Yokohama were shown to members of the Japanese community at the Japanese Club last evening.

The films show the wreckage in the capital as it appeared shortly after the temblor, while many large fires were raging and depict the work of caring for the injured, the feeding of the thousands of destitute, arrival of relief supplies and similar details. They give an exceptionally gripping idea of the extent of the disaster, both in Tokio and Yokohama and also of the first reconstruction activities.

The films were sent to Shanghai by the Department of Education of Japan, being brought over by one of the directors of the Eastern News Agency. They are being shown to the Japanese community again at the Club tonight and will probably be seen in one of the local theaters later.

Peking Is Gay On Celebration Of Anniversary Of Republic And Inauguration Of Newly-Elected President

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 10.—Peking today celebrated the National Day of the Republic and this twelfth anniversary was marked at the same time by the promulgation of the Constitution and the inauguration of Marshal Tsao Kun as President.

During yesterday shopkeepers and householders were busy hanging out flags and otherwise decorating their houses. Many pailous and triumphal arches were also erected, and last night the streets were illuminated and red lamps hung everywhere.

Up to the last it was uncertain what time the President would arrive, but he reached Peking at about seven o'clock this morning.

Some of his own troops of the 16th Mixed Brigade came into Peking yesterday and others arrived with him, so that altogether six ying are now in the capital. The streets today were also heavily lined with other troops and with police and gendarmes, so that along whatever street the President went they were standing almost shoulder to shoulder with fixed bayonets.

On his arrival President Tsao Kun went straight to the Presidential Mansion where he rested for a short time at the Yenchinglou.

At nine o'clock he proceeded to the Great Hall in the Palace where he was inaugurated as President in the presence of all the Cabinet Ministers, staffs of the Ministries and leading military and police officers. At this ceremony the President delivered his inaugural address:—

"Having been a military man all my life, I have had no experience in the civil branch of administration. Now that I am obliged to assume the responsibility of leadership in the affairs of the Republic and of labouring for the national welfare, solemnly entrusted to me by the people, I cannot but tremble when I reflect on the weightiness of that responsibility. It is, however, fortunate that the fundamental law of China has been completed just at the time when I take up office, and that a definite path has thus been laid out for the conduct of state affairs. All the previous Presidents of the Republic of China have been distinguished citizens, but they have been unable to carry out their policies simply because of the absence of a national constitution which otherwise would have guilded their administration. In that respect I feel I am more fortunate than my predecessors.

"The secret of successful government is the utilization of talented men. The nurturing of talents depends upon education, but in recent years on account of financial stringency, the institutions of learning in this country have been on the verge of suspension. This situation is having an adverse effect upon the future of our young men, and might ultimately undermine the foundations of the nation. The most urgent attention should therefore be paid to the maintenance and development of educational institutions.

"Upon finance hinges the whole fabric of government. A sound financial policy consists in the elimination of useless expenditures and the opening up of new sources of revenue. It is generally agreed that the development of industries will lead to the increase of our financial resources, but the country appears to be getting more impoverished every day because the plans for definitely limiting the size of the national army and thereby curtailing wasteful expenditures have remained in the stage of discussion and have not yet been put into execution. Financial retrenchment should therefore come before any endeavour to increase the revenue. If military and other expenses are reduced and if funds now used for unproductive purposes are turned into useful channels, the condition of the national treasury is bound to improve and probably this will be the best means of rehabilitating finance.

"Of late, lack of co-operation among the leaders has been the main cause for the country remaining disunited. The difference of political view-points and the conflict of old and new ideas have driven men of talent to dissipate their energies in internal strife, from which the nation has greatly suffered, I am deeply grieved to observe this state of affairs. As the country belongs to the whole people, the principles of government must be sought in the hearts of all citizens. Views may differ, but all minds should work for the welfare of the nation in unison. All those who are thus laboring for the lasting good of their countrymen should be given an opportunity for public service without discrimination. I, therefore, hope to unify the country by bringing together various talents for close co-operation, and I further hope that the whole nation will give full support to this policy.

"The people of the country can live and work only when peace and order are maintained. It is the duty of the magistrates to look after their welfare and the duty of the soldiers to afford them protection. In the performance of this duty neither the magistrate nor the soldier can shirk his responsibility. All the friendly Powers wish China well, but it will not be a fitting response to their well meant intentions if we do not fully discharge our duty of giving protection to the lives and property of their nationals in China. I shall hold all officials and officers responsible for the execution of this duty.

"Nations in this world cannot live sufficient unto themselves. If a nation desires the help of others it must first help itself. In recent years, the friendly powers have rendered much assistance to China, and it is for us to do our utmost in fulfilling the treaty obligations and in re-adusting the foreign debts and thereby further to promote the friendly relations between China and the Foreign Powers.

"At a time when the county is still in a disturbed condition, when the people are suffering hardships, when the stringency of finance is becoming more acute and when civil strife has not yet ceased, I, looking into the future, dare not say that I will be able to attain my goal. But it is not in my nature to be easily discouraged by difficulties. And I hope to make return for the support of my country by faithfully holding to my sincere purpose.

"Lately currents of political thought have been drifting towards newer and newer ideas. Consequently I find myself in the position of a physician who does not wish to adhere entirely to the old methods of treatment derived from the books, but who at the same time dares not use his patient as a subject for experiment to ascertain the efficacy of new methods of cure. A sage says: 'Good administration does not rely upon mere words but upon deeds well done.' In the administration of state affairs I will follow this principle as my guide."

After the inauguration ceremony the President went on to the Parliament buildings, arriving there at about 11 a.m. He attended the promulgation of the Constitution. This document, written on silk was read out by the Speaker, Mr. Wu Ching-lien. It is a document consisting of 13 sections or chapters and 141 Articles. After it had been read the band played the National Anthem and all the Members of Parliament bowed to the National Flag. After this they all left the Hall.

Punctually at noon they all entered the building again, headed by Mr. Wu Ching-lien. The President then entered accompanied by all the Cabinet Ministers in uniform. The President himself wore the uniform of a Field Marshal. The Ministers remained at the benches as the President advanced to the floor of the House and took the oath. This is very brief and merely consists of a statement that the President will carry out his presidential duties in accordance with the Constitution. After he had taken the oath all the Ministers and Members of Parliament led by the new President bowed three times to the National Flag.

The President then retired to a rest room and Parliament then carried out the ceremony of terminating the session. This was also a very short function. The Speaker made a short speech declaring the session at an end and then the National Anthem was again played.

After these interesting ceremonies were over, a photograph was taken of the President and all the Cabinet Ministers and Members of Parliament. As far as could be seen from a short distance, the Speaker sat next to the President in this historic group.

President Tsao Kun then returned through streets as heavily guarded as before to the Palace. This afternoon he is receiving congratulations from the Manchu House and Princes and other notable persons.

Three days' holiday has been proclaimed in Peking.

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanking, Oct. 11.—The celebration of the National Holiday passed off very quietly in Nanking. Between three and four thousand students met at the Public Athletic Grounds, when speeches against Tsao Kun and the militarist party were the program for the day. This meeting was followed by a parade throughout the city, all of which was carried out in an orderly manner. In the evening the students of the University of Nanking held a lantern procession, follwed by two hours of fireworks and speeches on the campus.

Martial law has been proclaimed in the city and double police guards are no duty at the important cross streets. After six o'clock in the evening ammunition is handed out to those on duty.

The general consensus of opinion is that there will not be any trouble in the immediate future in or near Nanking. There is too much trouble in the provinces in the south and southwest to enable anyone to attack this province with a force that would ensure success.

Hangchow Has Pig Effigies Of New President

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, Oct. 10.—The Hangchow public is suffering the pangs of disgrace today. A monster demonstration and public meeting is in session at the public recreation grounds at which prominent leaders from every walk of life are haranguing the crowds on the disgrace of having local representatives in Peking who would and did vote for Tsao Kun. Resolutions have been passed branding the Chekiang representatives as traitors to their trust, demanding their expulsion from the province and the confiscation of their property. Their names are being paraded through the streets on banners, and at the head of the procession are lanterns in the shape of black pigs, which bear the names of the president and prominent members of the national senate.

Plans were on foot to have a parade of the students of the city in celebration of independence day, but these gave way to the demonstration of anger and disgust over the elevation of the new president in Peking. The authorities have offered no objection to the demonstrations, and the only signs of caution on their part is an extra guard of soldiers who are mingling freely with the crowds in the public gardens by the lake.

An interesting exhibit at the demonstrations is what is said to be an greatly enlarged facsimile of one of the checks for five thousand dollars distributed to many members of the legislature in exchange for their support of Tsao Kun. The opinion here is that the demonstrations of today will prove a safety valve for what many thought to be a dangerous situation in the province. The fear of conflict between Chekiang and Kiangsu is also passing.

Ningpo Celebrates The Anniversary

(China Press Correspondence)

Ningpo, Oct. 10.—A mass meet was held in the Ming Lung Hall this morning at 9 o'clock for celebrating the 12th Anniversary of the Republic. Thousands of people, representing the students, people from the Christian Social Center and from the City "Y" and various public organisations and institutions were present at the meeting. The hall was crowded to its full limits. Ambitious speeches, which were respectfully accept by the audience, were delivered in the meeting by Messrs. Y. S. Sing, the principal of the Ningpo Middle School, M. L. Tsing and K. T. Woo. Thunderous applause was heard throughout the hall after the speeches were finished. People present at the meeting were all deeply moved.

The main idea of the speeches included the importance of solidarity of the people and the unavoidable works which people should do in order to make China succeed in the effort of reunification between south and north, though many of the militarists and parliamentarians are in the midst of evil influences apparently insurmountable. It is believed that those who are illegal and unlawful will very shortly fall. And the Chinese people as it is generally recognised are the men who constitute the vital factor of the life of China.

New First Lady Darns Husband's Socks

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge.

ELEVATION to the exalted position of First Lady of the Land has in no way changed the home life of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who was caught unexpectedly by a photographer as she sat in her apartments, in the temporary White House, in Washington—the Hotel Willard—unostentatiously darning a pair of Mr. Coolidge's socks. And it might be mentioned in passing that the socks were of durable cotton, and not of shining silk. Mrs. Coolidge is an expert needlewoman and has knitted all her own sweaters. She is rarely found without her knitting needles.

RUSSIAN SUES TRAM COMPANY FOR TLS. 3,000

Alleges He Received Shock On Tram Car On Seward Road

Claiming he was shocked through the negligence of the company's employees while a passenger on a tram car on Seward Road on May 17 Mr. F. P. Romanoff, a Russian living at 14 East Seward Road, yesterday sued the Shanghai Electric Construction Company, Ltd., for Tls. 3,000 damages before Chief Judge Sir Skinner Turner in the British Supreme Court.

The plaintiff is represented by Mr. Tycho Wing and the defendant company by Mr. Lipson Ward.

Mr. Romanoff alleges that as a result of the accident he is now suffering from tranmatic neurosis and that his working capacity has been reduced by 70 percent.

The defense admits that Romanoff was shocked while standing on the platform of the car by the lighting current short circuiting owing to the lighting plug of the trailer coming out and breaking.

MEDICAL EVIDENCE

Dr. A. Renner, the first witness called testified that he had examined the plaintiff on three occasions and found that he was suffering from tranmatic neurosis which could have been caused by the shock on the tram car. With proper treatment and rest he would be completely recovered within from three to five months, he said. In cross-examination by Mr. Ward, Doctor Renner said that certain symptoms of the disease must have been present on June 11, a date suggested by Mr. Ward.

Dr. A. C. Bary, a specialist in nervous diseases, testified that he had examined Romanoff the day following the accident and had seen him every day thereafter at the General Hospital until June 1. Before the accident, he said, Romanoff was healthy in every respect but now he was suffering from a characteristic case of tranmatic neurosis, including loss of memory.

Dr. Bary said that during the five months that had elapsed since the accident Romanoff had shown only slight improvement and while he did not doubt that the patient would recover in time it would take one year, perhaps two years.

JUNE 11

Under cross examination Dr. Bary refused to answer a question as to why symptoms were absent when the plaintiff was examined by Dr. Cumming on June 11. On June 2, he said there were objective symptoms, and there were also like symptoms during the latter part of the month.

Sir Skinner asked whether or not a man who was suddenly shocked in that manner would not jump or swear or do something to attract the attention of others near. Dr. Bary had some difficulty before he answered, "Yes." Sir Skinner remarked that he could not see how an otherwise normal man could keep from making some display when he was suddenly electrically shocked.

Romanoff, who said he was a commission agent earning Tls. 50 a month, was next called and described the accident. During May, he said, he was a passenger on the tram when he suddenly saw a very bright light and felt a shock. As the car stopped, he continued, the light disappeared and he felt something pressing down on his head which caused great pain. Afterwards he could not think and went inside the tram and sat down. There another Russian called his attention to his coat, which had been burned.

The case was subsequently adjourned until Wednesday when the defense will be given.

ny, Tientsin and Vladivostok from the beginning of the season until the end of Sept. amounted to 252,029 lbs., a considerable improvement over the figures at corresonding date in the previous tea season (namely 86,397 lbs.). At a corresponding date in the 1921-1922 season Shanghai exported to Russia only 52,662 lbs. of congou tea.

Advices from England state that stocks of tea there are short, the total at the end of August standing at 113,405,635 lbs. as compared with 207,448,000 lbs in 1921. How far so considerable a fall in stocks is going to influence prices of tea in England it cannot be stated offhand. The stocks since have been augmented by the arrivals of supplies from China and India. Quotations are expected to advance still further during the month. The exception will probably be the common teas, the quality of which, especially from India, is much below standard.

According to statistics published for fiscal year ending June 30 China's tea trade with the United States fell off 17 percent from 16,21,859 dbs. valued at G.$2,258,581 in 1922 to 13,507,750 lbs. valued at G.$2,110,938. Japan showed the greatest gain in export of Japanese tea to the United States, increasing her shipments 30 percent from 26,639,12? lbs. valued at G.$6,220,627 in 1922 to 35,974,918 lbs. valued at G.$9,533,419 in 1923.

In some lines of green teas there has been experienced a series of declines. Chun Mess, medium to good medium are lower by some four taels, but Sow Mees are better, being about a tael to two taels higher. Gunpowders are quoted at Tls, 48 to Tls 52. Country tea is quoted lower owing to the desire of the tea men to sell their holdings. With regard to the first crop of Hoochows and Pingsueys a good trade is transpiring in both the first and second crops. Prices are quite steady. Values range between Tls. 23.50 and Tls. 27.50; stocks at present of Hoochows are about 7,250 half chests and of Pingsueys 58,760 boxes.

Ruth Hits Two Homers In Second World Series Games, Yanks Winning

Babe's Clouts Stir Throng To Frenzy; Casey Stengel Wins First For Giants With Four-Ply Wallop

(Exclusive China Press)

New York, Oct. 11.—The World's Series is tied in a knot tonight at one all, the Giants and Yankees each having won a game. Yesterday the McGraw clan copped thanks to a homer by the ancient Casey Stengel. who drove a circuit clout to deep left after two were out and the score tied in the ninth.

Babe Ruth was the hero of today's battle, the huge clouter connecting for two home run wallops that took the steam out of the Giants. To make matters worse for them Ward, another Yankee, also hit for four bases.

Not to be outdone by the Yankee sluggers Emil Meusel busted one into the left field stands in the second. This evened the count and gave the Giant fans an excuse for tearing their hair.

The big Yank explosion came in the fourth, which stanza was pried open by Ruth with a terrific homer that cleared the left field fence. The two Wallys. Pipp and Schang, then singled to right and left, respectively, Pipp going to third on Schang's blow. With two on Scott drove a hot single to center that sent Pipp over. That was plenty for McQuillan who was relieved by Jack Bentley. Jack started by hitting Hert Pennock in the slats and it began to look like the Yanks might get another run or two. but Bentley immediately steadied, holding Whitey Witt to a pop fly that Cunningham gobbled.

TINGLE-DE DIOS READY TO MIX AT STADIUM TONIGHT

Speed Artists All Set For Twelve Round Go In Ring

Everything is in readiness for the battle at the Stadium tonight between Billy Tingle and Faustino De Dios. Bill has been training hard at the Chinese Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and reports himself in fine condition for the scrap. De Dios also has put on the last of his finishing touches and according to word from his camp he is all set to give the Australian a battle.

The meeting between these boys ought to be a hum dinger. Both are speed merchants of the first magnitude, and both are skilled in every department of ring craft.

Most of the fight sharps around town are picking Tingle to win, and to win rather easily. His greater experience, they figure, will be an advantage that Faustino cannot hope to overcome assuming that his own speed is as great as the Australian's which is not admitted by those who have seen both boys in action.

Billy will undoubtably carry the battle to De Dios, provided the latter doesn't assume the offensive himself, which is not unlikely. Faustino has a punch and knows it, and is not adverse to using it when opportunity offers. At the same time he has shown a great defense in his two scraps here and one that even Tingle will find difficulty in penetrating.

At any rate all indications point to a first class battle.

CATHEDRAL BOYS TO HOLD ANNUAL SPORTS TODAY

Twenty Events On Card; China Press Shield To Be Contested For

The Cathedral School for boys will hold their annual sports on the S.R.C. ground today by kind permission of the President and members of the Recs Club. The first event of a card of twenty will be run off at 2.30 p.m. sharp.

One of the main events will be the struggle for the China Press Shield for physical efficiency. Four teams are entered. They will be captained by Hickmott, Ayers, Tuxford and Hamlin. Each team will consist of ten boys. They will march to a base and will then be put through six exercises. Marks will be given for discipline, for each of the six exercises, for the handling of the teams by their leaders and for the general impression. Messrs. Keegan and Tuxford will be the judges for this event.

The Field Shield, presented by Major Pilcher, will certainly prove a keen competition. The idea here is that any member of a team that scores a first gains 5 marks for his side. If it is a second it means 3 and if a third just 1. The school is divided up into four teams known as the Olympians, the Vikings, the Crusaders and the Augonauts. Boys in the team range from the age of seven to seventeen. The fact a youngster of seven can gain five marks with a first in his own particular class makes the seniors keen to train them.

There is no competition for individual prizes. Every boy runs and struggles for his side. Co-operation is the slogan. Lady Turner has kindly consented to give away the trophies. A committee of ladies have arranged tea for all visitors.

"Peter"

MITCHELL Davis, of Franklin Parish, La., was recently convicted of murder because Peter, a bloodhound, followed a trail to Davis's home from the scene of a murder. An appeal to the State Supreme Court resulted in a reversal of the verdict, Chief Justice Charles A. CHANGES MADE IN BASKETBALL PLAYING RULES

Player Against Whom Foul Is Committed Must Make Throw

The following is a summary of the changes made in the Basketball Rules by the Joint Basketball Committee at its annual meeting in New York, April 10, 1923. The changes will go into effect next season, 1923-24. The substance only and not the exact wording of the changes is given here.

1. When a personal foul is called, the player against whom the foul is committed must attempt the free throw or throws; that requirement holds unless the player entitled to the throw must leave the game because of injury, in which event his substitute must attempt the throw. This is the only case in which any player except the one against whom a personal foul is committed may attempt the free throw. The free throws after technical fouls may be made by any player.

2. When a personal foul is committed against a player who is in his own goal zone, two free throws are awarded only when the offended player is in possession of the ball. If a player who is outside of his goal zone is fouled when in the act of throwing for goal, two free throws are awarded. Double personal foul in goal zone, one free throw to each team.

3. Time is to be taken out whenever two or more free throws are awarded. This applies as formerly to double fouls, and now applies when two or more free throws are awarded to the same team. In the latter case time is resumed when the ball leaves the player's hands for the last free throw.

4. A captain may request time-out whenever the ball is dead, or whenever in play in possession of his team.

5. The baskets must be nets of white cord suspended from black metal rings; the ball must be tightly inflated.

6. The ball is considered out of bounds when it strikes the edges or back of the backboard.

7. The note to Rule 8, Section 1, is made a section, thus requiring that the time for boys of high school age shall be eight-minute quarters, and for the younger boys, six-minute quarters.

-:- The Port Of London -:-

BY F. CUNLIFFE-OWEN, C.B.E.

Visitors to Great Britain should make a point, at least once in a lifetime, to arrive in London by water instead of by rail. There are thousands upon thousands of citizens of the United States and Canada who cross the ocean year after year, and who, invariably disembarking at Liverpool, at Southampton or at Plymouth, have no conception whatsoever of the Port of London, which, for the present, still remains the greatest port in the world, and who are, consequently, in complete ignorance of all that vast portion of the British metropolis which extends eastward from the Tower Bridge along the banks of the Thames over to the mouth of the river. Yet it offers a wonderful spectacle, extremely picturesque and of surpassing interest, so much so as to be well worth while making the trip by boats which sail from American ports direct to London. The Cunard, the White Star, the Atlantic Transport the Bibby, the Royal Mail, the Peninsular and Oriental, the Orient and other of the big ocean steamship companies are already operating many of their great liners from London, while any number of foreign shipping concerns are using the latter as their principal British port.

For the purpose of facilitating and encouraging this passenger traffic the Port of London Authority, of which Viscount Devonport is the First Chairman and virtual originator, is constructing, at Tilbury, a huge landing stage, with all necessary equipment for the examination of baggage on disembarkation, so that the passengers on stepping from the ship directly on to the landing stage, after the passing of their baggage in the long halls on the landing stage, can walk the few steps up the covered gangway to immediately take their places in the waiting train on the, adjacent river bank at Tilbury for the forty-minute run to London.

This landing stage, in spite of its elaborate construction and equipment, is not intended as a permanency but merely for use pending the completion of the great new Tilbury docks, now being built, and which, when finished, within the next three years, at an expense of several million pounds sterling, will enable the passengers to step from the liners on to the dock and into the railroad train awaiting them there instead of on the landing stage.

80 MILES OF QUAYS

The total dock area of the Port of London today extends over nearly 3,000 acres and is being enlarged all the time. The Port of London has some eighty miles of quays, wharves and jetties which are used in the course of a year by more than 50,000,000 tons of shipping. The expenditure called for under the new developments, now under construction, amounts close upon £25,000,000 and Lord Devonport and his board administering the Port of London, are firmly convinced, and have convinced Parliament, of the fact that, with its trade increasing all the time, no expense must be spared in keeping the port abreast of the growing demands made upon it by domestic and foreign commerce which, last year, represented a value of £1,000,000,000 according to the official figures.

Appreciating this condition of affairs, Lord Pirrie, head of the immense shipbuilding concern of Harland and Wolff of Belfast, contracted, a year ago, with Lord Devonport to establish an elaborate up-to-date repairing outfit in London for ships of the largest size, similar to that which they built upon the Mersey for the Port of Liverpool during the great war and, analagous to that which his firm possesses at Southampton, Lord Pirrie's concern has already expended a very large sum of money in equipping his new repair establishment in the Port of London with the most modern plant and machinery, with fitting-out wharves and docks capable of handling expeditiously the largest jobs.

Huge cranes are being constructed to take the heaviest hoists, and there are fitting, turning and machine shops, boiler shops iron and brass foundries; in fact, everything requisite for quick refit work to hull, engine, deck and passenger departments of the ship. Lord Pirrie was led to embark on this farsighted expenditure and to complete the contract with Lord Devonport the year before last, when a big American ship of heavy tonnage happened to hit a stray German mine off Gravesend. She was at once beached, and as soon as she had been patched up, she was sent over to Rotterdam to be properly repaired. Price had nothing to do with the matter. She had to go to the Dutch repair yards because there was no other yard handy to the Thames and of sufficient size where she could receive the necessary attention. When Lord Pirrie's improvements are completed next year his yards on the Thames will be in a position to handle liners of even the largest size and heaviest tonnage.

It must be borne in mind that the Port of London is the greatest "entrepot" of trade in the universe. One of the most remarkable sights of the metropolis, one with which French, German, Belgians and visitors from other countries of Continental Europe are familiar, and yet which few Americans ever make a point of taking in during their stay in England, is the immense aggregation of warehouses bordering on the docks; warehouses in which the great merchants of London preserve their imports in bond until they ship them again to other countries.

VAST STORES OF IMPORTS

It is a liberal education to go over these colossal warehouses, some of which are devoted exclusively to ivory, others wholly to Japanese and Chinese porcelains, others again to furs, yet others to tea, to coffee, to spices, to tobacco and to carpets from the Orient. The weight of tea alone that passed through these warehouses last year represented 370,000,000 days' work. One hundred million dollars' worth of wool, shorn from the backs of 90,000,000 sheep went in and out of these bonded warehouses in the space of the last twelve months while Australia, New Zealand and South America send nearly 200,000,000 tons of beef to the Port of London annually.

And, as if these bonded warehouses above ground were not enough, there is, below the surface of the soil, an immense labyrinth of vaults, tiers upon tiers of them, some of them dating back to the Tudor Kings and extending miles upon miles, and where wines and spirits are held in bond, often for generations. Quantities of hogsheads have lain there since the Napoleonic wars at the beginning of the nineteenth century and, since the era of the Battle of Waterloo while there are some immense barrels that go back to the time of good Queen Anne.

The original owners of many of these so-called "pipes of wine" have long since passed into oblivion. But the hogsheads are held there, indefinitely, awaiting the claim of any possible heirs who may turn up. Fortunately, an allowance is made for shrinkage and evaporation, and, thanks to this the guardians of these vaults are able to treat distinguished visitors to small glasses of absolutely unrivalled wines from the wood. It is well, however, for the visitor to partake sparingly thereof and to fortify his stomach beforehand with a big meal. For the spirituous fumes in these dimly lighted, fungistudded vaults are overpowering and on several occasions when it has fallen to my lot, in years gone by, to pilot foreign royalties on expeditions through these mazes of cellars, some of the party have, without touching a single drop, been completely prostrated and overtaken by a stupor of intoxication.

Until about fifteen years ago the control of all of these various docks and wharves, as well as the river itself, was divided among scores of different bodies and corporations. There was the Thames Conservancy, there was the City of London, there was Trinity House, the London County Council, the ancient Watermen's Guild, the Government Board of Trade, and the numerous companies owning the various docks and bonded warehouses, all of them working independently of one another, and in many cases in rivalry, with the result that the river was not sufficiently dredged and the traffic was abominably managed, so much so that shipping was driven away and the import and reexport trade commenced to show a very serious and alarming decline.

PORT OF LONDON AUTHORITY

Early in the present century a Royal Commission, composed of members of both Houses of Parliament, was appointed by King Edward VII, to investigate the matter and, after a most exhaustive inquiry, and the removal of obstacles which appeared insuperable, an act of Parliament was finally passed in 1908 concentrating all authority and all powers in the hands of a corporate body entitled "The Port of London Authority," stock in the corporation being given to the various dock companies, etc., for the surrender of their interests and rights. The directorate of the corporation as now constituted comprises representatives of the Admiralty, as well as of the Ministry of Transport, of the Corporation of London and of Trinity Houses, besides seventeen members elected by the wharfingers and owners of river craft. The Government Board of Trade and the County Council are compelled, by the act, to each consult with the representatives of labor as to the appointment of two of their four delegates, so that labor may be said to have two important representatives on the Board of Directors. The so-called Port Authority fixes the port rates and dock charges, polices the river, has powers to borrow money for the purpose of maintenance and construction, while its control of the stream extends from Teddington to the mouth of the Thames, that is to say, a stretch of nearly eighty miles.

The Chairman of the Royal Commission which thus organised the administration of the Port of London, in face of difficulties that appeared even more insuperable than those confronting the Chairman of the Port Authority of New York—the man who piloted the bill through Parliament is now the presiding officer of the Port Authority of London, and, although that post carries with it a salary of £5,000 a year, the occupant of the office, Lord Devonport, like his American counterpart in New York, Engenius H. Outerbridge, has always declined to touch a penny piece thereof on the ground that to be permitted to serve the nation in so important a fashion is, in itself, a sufficient reward.

Lord Devonport is a very remarkable man, wholly self-made, having started in life as an errand boy, son of a small farmer of Uxbridge in Middlesex. By 1873, when he was 17 years of age, he had attained the dignity of clerk in a tea-importing house at the munificent salary of £60 a year. At 20, Hudson Kearley—for that was his name—determined to begin business for himself as a tea merchant, and his firm, now known as Kearley and Tong, began as a one-man concern, he acting as his own buyer, blender, traveler and bookkeeper. Today branch establishments of his firm, known as the International Stores, and which do not only a huge tea but also a grocery trade, are to be found all over the United Kingdom. There are some five hundred of his stores in Great Britain, others in Ireland, and many more in the Colonies and, of course, he has become enormously rich.

STUDIED WATERFRONT

Entering Parliament for Devonport in 1892, as a Liberal, Hudson Kearley showed such a knowledge, acquired in his boyhood, of everything relating to life and work along the waterfront of London that the late Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman, then Premier, ended by inviting him to join his Administration as Parliamentary Secretary to the Government Board of Trade—that is to say, to the Department of Commerce—and entrusted him with the Chairmanship of the Port of London Royal Commission and, subsequently, with task of piloting the various bills relating thereto through Parliament. For his services in this connection he received, in turn, a Baronetcy, a seat in the Privy Council of the King and, finally, elevation to the House of Lords as Baron and Viscount Devonport, being the first member of a grocery firm to receive a peerage of the realm.

No sketch, however brief, of Lord Devonport's career would be complete without a mention of the masterly way in which he handled the great dock strikes of 1912 that, for a time, paralyzed the entire Port of London, almost reducing the metropolis to a condition of famine, owing to the impossibility of unloading the shipping bringing foodstuffs to the capital.

Every possible pressure was brought to bear upon him to give way to the strikes—pressure by the press, by Parliament, by the Archbishop of Canterbury, by the leading members of the Anglican and Roman Catholic hierarchy, by the leaders of the Parliamentary opposition, by the great banking interests, by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London, and even by the Government, first and foremost by the then Premier, Herbert Asquith. But Lord Devonport declined to surrender although Ben Tillet and the other labor leaders publicly urged the strikers to shoot him. In the long run, he won the day hands down, gained the profound respect, if not the affection, of the labor element and established once and for all time the principle that the administration of the Port of London, the greatest port in the world, is of too vital importance to the British Empire to admit for one moment of its being at the mercy of irresponsible and professional agitators of labor.

Paddy The Next Best Thing

Tonight the Forbes Russell Company are presenting "Paddy the Next Best Thing," one of the most popular plays presented to the public in recent years. It is a delightful combination of everything-pathos and comedy, sentiment and melodrama, brilliant flashes of humor and subtle elusive charm which defies description. Nearly everyone has read the book and has loved the wild, head-strong girl, Paddy, the tom-boy daughter of an over-indulgent parent who wanted a boy but found in Paddy, the next best thing. Miss Niqua Lewis' impersonation of Paddy, according to the criticisms to hand, is a thing of delight and has aroused great enthusiasm in India. The play is said to be one of the Company's best, and therefore an enjoyable evening is assured those who intend being present at the Lyceum this evening.

Finance Minister Believes Offer Of Help Will Be Accepted

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Oct. 10.—In the course of an interview yesterday with press representatives, Mr. Inouye, Minister of Finance, making an explanation about Japan's financial and economic state of affairs, stated as follows:

"The financial foundation of Japan is still very firm and solid. As there is a good deal of surplus funds in the national treasury, there is enough money in reserve to meet the expenses requisite for various purposes. But in view of the fact that in the execution of reconstruction plans, great quantities of building materials are needed and that Japan must needs import from abroad a greater part of these materials, it is to be expected that the sum required for that purpose will reach an enormous extent.

"I feel convinced that for the payment of materials purchased in foreign countries, the Japanese Government has no alternative but to apply a loan floated in foreign markets. The matter as regards to what extent the intended loan will be floated in foreign markets, of course, depends upon the reconstruction plan and is to be decided upon subject to the approval by the Diet."

Cotton Reports

In their weekly report on the Shanghai Cotton market, Messrs. A. S. Rosenfeld and Son write as follows:

China Cotton.—We have had a strong bull market all the week, accompanied by quite a revival in speculation, and at the close, last night, an average net advance of some Tls. 1.50 was held, with sentiment still almost unanimous in favor of much higher prices. Receipts from the interior marts to date are very small with no indications of any improvements in the near future. Demand, however, is fairly brisk for the actual cotton with limited offerings. It is clearly evident at present that sentiment has become more divided and the active manipulation brought into play at times to depress prices, seem to indicate that opposition on the part of up-country holders has been aroused on the bull side and support required to bear the market has shown an absence of any natural weakness.

In summing up the situation, we still contend that in looking at the question of supply and demand, the market points to a higher level of prices, unless the outlook should be changed materially by startling and untoward developments in regard to the world's industrial situation. As to the China staple, the near future hings on the development in Mid-Americans and Indian cotton coupled with the attitude of up-country holders. The latter for the present, seem determined to hold out for higher prices. Meanwhile, as to the immediate future, it is quite likely that a slight reaction may take place, but we hardly think it will arouse any fresh bear speculative enthusiasm. We must not overlook the fact that Bears are not having a very pleasant experience to date in covering their short sales and are contending with themselves with the hope that within the next few days the farmers will have to realise cash in order to defray expenses for their Chung Yang Festival. With the chances that any bulge will bring out more liquidations in Spots and Futures, the fact remains that we have been running up against a phenomenally light movement of cotton from the interior markets and we are averse to advising our friends to follow decline of any consequences.

Yarn.—The market has been quite firm during the past week, and prizes advanced some three to four taels from last week's level. At the close the tendency continues to be toward higher prices. Business for export has been booked, some 7,000 to 8,000 bales and some 5,000 to 6,000 bales direct business with the Mills have been recorded. The future trend of the market is hopeful and a brisk revival in new orders is looked forward to in the near future.

SPUNT'S REPORT

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows in their weekly report on the cotton market:

China Cotton.—Our market during the past week continued firm without any relaxation and prices steadily advanced to about Tls. 1.50 per picul higher than the level last attained with a tendency at the close to still higher rates. The appreciable improvement in yarn values during this week acts as an incentive to increasing the demand for the raw material and the pressure brought to bear on the farmers by the Native Hongs to release their holdings appears to encourage them to withhold their stocks for prices more in consonance with their views, and accounts for the very small receipts from the interior, at this early stage of the season, of Shanghai, Tungchow and Taochong grades, and which are at this time most in demand. Furthermore it is quite apparent that for the present, spinners cannot have recourse to foreign cotton such as Mid-Americans and Indians owing to the wide disparity in prices still existing and should the rates on the local staple, advance further there is a probability for certain grades of Indian cotton being imported which may relieve the current trend of the domestic market.

A reperusal of our circulars of the 1st, 15th, and 22nd, September, 1923 is recommended at this time in that purchases at current rates will yet prove profitable in the future. Tone of the market firm.

EXTRACT FROM EXPERT REPORT:

"Having visited most of the cement factories of Great Britain, America and Europe, I am in a position to form an opinion of the relative merits and faults of each.....but my experience lead me to the conclusion that 'pride of place' must unquestionably be given to the Holderbank Factory in Switzerland .....In design and construction it is a model without rival in any country." W. H. Brown, A. M. I. Mech. E., leading authority in England on cement manufacturing.

The Wisdom of the ancient Sage and the technical experience of a modern authority on cement manufacturing have guided us to instal a set of machinery in our Lungwha Works which is an exact model of the one used by the Holderbank factory, Switzerland, and supplied by the original patentees with numerous latest improvements. The cement we are now supplying our customers is the product of that "perfect instrument."

Bullet Speed

AT Mineola Flying Field, Long Island, a few days ago, a tiny biplane, with body of royal blue, a flashing silver propeller and wings of gold, streaked four times across the sky, twice in either direction, over a measured course of a kilometer. Official timers announced that its pilot had shot through space at an average rate of 244.15 miles an hour. On one lap, with the wind, the rate had reached 255 miles an hour, the fastest rate ever traveled by man or by any living thing.

If it were possible to maintain that speed man could circle the globe at its equator in four days and four hours. Such a possibility dwarfs anything in the imagination of Jules Verne, who took eighty days to send his hero around the world.

In maintaining this average speed of more than four miles a minute Lieutenant Brow eclipsed all preceding official records. Last October Lieutenant Maughan was credited with covering 100 kilometers at 206.31 miles an hour and one kilometer at 248.5 miles an hour. This was not, however, an official speed record. An official record was established on February 15 by the French airman Sadi Lecointe of a rate of 233.01 miles an hour over a one kilometer course. This was officially broken by Lieutenant Maughan on March 29 with a speed of 236.587 miles an hour over one kilometer.

Flying at the same field on the same day Lieutenant Maitland was credited with maintaining an average speed of 243 miles an hour, and even with reaching the terrific pace of 281.4 miles an hour on one trip across the field aided by the wind. But the final speed that the official timers accorded to him was 239.95 miles an hour, and though this was faster than Maughan's record it was thrown out because of a technical violation of the rules of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale. Lieutenant Maitland in two trips across the field had failed to maintain horizontal flight as required.

Nearly all of the previous speed records have been held by army pilots. The record of 238 miles an hour was made in a Navy-Wright plane by Lieutenant Sanderson of the Marine Corps. Harold J. Brow, who established the new record of 244 miles an hour, is a navy lieutenant and used a Navy-Curtiss plane.

It is small wonder that Sadi Lecointe, previous holder of many world's airplane speed records, should, according to Paris cable, be "admonishing the French public to make reservations of credulity" in receiving the report that Lieutenant Sanderson had made 238 miles an hour in a Navy-Wright plane. Lecointe's skepticism is apparently due to the quite natural misapprehension that the Navy-Wright machine is a seaplane. In June of this year the fastest official time for a seaplane was 102.88 miles an hour and the fastest time ever recorded for a seaplane was 185.8 miles an hour made by Lieutenant Gorton on August 9. Seaplanes are slower than planes equipped to rise only from land, because the pontoons offer great air resistance. The navy planes which have made the two records however, are not seaplanes.

Predictions of the limit of air speed can be little more than guesswork. The army pilots, announce that the army is not worried by the speed records of the navy planes, and feel confident of the results of the coming races. New possibilities in speed may come with further refinements in engines, in propeller design and in wing camber as a result of the scientific experiments and calculations that are constantly being made. Man has already licked the eagle at his own game.

China And The League

A message from Geneva states that following the election of Uruguay, Brazil, Belgium, Czecho Slovakia and Spain as non-permanent members of the Council of the League of Nations, China only obtaining ten votes and being eliminated in favor of Czecho-Slovakia, the Chinese delegation has protested against China's non re-election. The ground of the Chinese delegation's protest is that the principle of geographical distribution of non permanent members has been violated, and that this has resulted in depriving the Council of the co-operation of any Asiatic state. The delegation goes further and hints at the temporary, and even permanent, abstention of China from the League.

It is amazing that such a protest should have been made. An election is an election, and there is no reason in the world why a state once elected a non-permanent member of the Council should begin to regard itself as a permanent member. A state elected to a non permanent seat on the Council has no vested interest in the seat, and it would be a misfortune were it to become customary for elected states to expect re-election. There are societies and associations and municipal councils not a thousand miles from Peking where this sort of rabbit hutch reproduction is the rule, with amazing results in subnormal vitality, enfeebled mentality and almost hypnotic passivity. The principle is in itself bad and, in so far as the Chinese delegation's protest aganist China's non re-election goes to support the vicious principle, the protest is bad also. It is bad on other grounds as well. It is ill-timed. At a moment when this country is so torn and divided that only an act of complaisance, prompted by enlightened self-interest, o the part of the Powers enables diplomatic relations with the outside world to be maintained, when foreign life, Prcherty and interests are daily jeopardized, and when the country has gone back wholesale on its engagements under the various opium conventions, it ill becomes the Chinese delegation to are states either committed to the very express mark of disapprobation implied in non re-election to the Council.

Nor is that quite all. It will be noticed that the states receiving the lowest number of votes are states either committed to the opium traffic in one form or another, or states which have not met their engagements under the various opium Convntions. India is notoriously battening on the drug trade, and the less her actual production of the drug the more she battens. Persia is still engaged in the traffic. The Netherlands Government is almost indifferent to the traffic amongst the native and non native but Asiatic population in her East Indian possessions. And China, as all the world knows, though her chief delegate to the League of Nations is constantly trying to gloss over the fact, is rapidly reverting to conditions not much better, and in some places no better, than those obtaining before the Anglo-Chinese Agreement for the abolition of the opium traffic. The vote may be taken as registering international cognizance of the conditions obtaining in the countries named, cognizance of the conditions a protest against Chinese bad faith. —Far Eastern Times.

America's Gateway To The East

BY FRANK H. HEDGE

Lights rose on the horizon of of the black waters, the fairy lights of San Francisco's playground by the outer sea. Little dots and dashes of glowing yellow stretched along the shore line that was not yet visible from the decks of the great ship, and up and down, in and out, among these fixed and stationary sparks, there twinkled other little earthly stars. From the headlands that make the Golden Gate flashed in rhythmic gleamr, like the beat of a giant drum, the rays of colored brightness set there, as beacon lights, to guide all mariners to safety.

The dark cliffs of the gateway loomed high and black on either hand as the vessel glided between them, moving with the calm, measured breath of the sleeper through the quiet waters. The great swells of the mighty Pacific were left behind as the boat slipped close to a white-towered island and dropped anchor for the night, to wait for dawn before proceeding through the bay to tie up at a dock that would be clanging with life in the morning, but that now lay silent and deserted.

There is romance in the entering of any harbor, even if it be amid the dirt and grime of factory chimneys lining both banks of a grease-covered river that deepens with the tide. At night, all that is ugly is hidden. Of all the many harbors of the world which beckon traveler and sailor, that of San Francisco is one of the most magnificent, whether by light of sun or moon or stars. There is romance and the breath of high endeavor, an inspiration like the inspiration of wind-swept prairies, on its broad waters and the hills that rise from them, hills covered with green forests in part and in part with the buildings of a mighty city. The romance deepens when America calls to the son of her soil returning, a weary traveler perchance, from his wanderings to far corners of the earth.

From the upper deck of the steamer a little group looked landward. Lights in even rows that marked the streets of the city arose into the air, climbing the side of one of the steep hills on which San Francisco is built. Along its base crept electric cars, while now and again the sky was lit with a great glare as some motor car pushed up the far side of the hill, sending the full force of its dazzling headlights against the clouds before it topped the crest to drop silently down to its destination.

The bustle and confusion of landing, a disorderly rush in which order reigns but cannot be discerned, came with the morning, and then came that never-to-be-forgotten experience—San Francisco!

Only a few feet above the level of the bay, along the foot of a hill so steep it seems rather to be a man-made wall, stretches the broad thoroughfare that is the artery of the city's business life. Four double lines of steel bear clanging tramcars up and down the center of the street, while automobiles pour over the black pavement in a stream so steady that they, too, form a barrier that resembles the rushing waters of a river, separating one curb line from the other. Like the waters of the Rea Sea, these waves of mechanism part as the traffic police holds up his hand. The open passageway is closed at once by a new stream of life moving at right angles as crowds of walkers surge through the cleavage, for the broad sidewalks bear as heavy a burden of traffic as does the street itself.

Tall buildings, the proud western children of New York forbears, look down. The crowds that rush along the sidewalks appear as ants beside them, but they are the ants whose work has reared these fittingly termed "skyscrapers." Shop windows, gayly dressed, attract a loiterer among the throng, while another enters some wide doorway to be whisked upward and so disappear from sight. Sons of Asia are scattered here and there among their brethren from the Nordic-Slavic world. Hotels, cafes and motion picture shows; stores and offices and news stands; all the institutions of trade and commerce, of necessity and luxury, that modern man has come to think of as absolutely essential to his daily life are here.

A gentle grade carries the street upward as the residence section is neared. Buildings that recall Greece and Rome front on a triangle that is the Civic Center. Beyond abruptly rises the hill which here cuts over to the edge of the bay, but man has cut through it, too, a passageway for his convenience.

A city of wood is San Francisco, when the business district of the bay drops below and out of sight. Most countries now find the trunks of trees too valuable for building purposes, but not so the west coast of America. Beyond the fire line—no citizen of northern California ever speaks of the earthquake, or of "'Frisco"—beyond the wide street that stopped the flames, nearly twenty years ago, brick and stone are seldom seen.

Homes of wood, city homes that crowd each other and lack space, are here, but far too many do not have the appearance of homes. They are houses. Perhaps because so many workers of the city cross the bay each night to where may be found more grass and trees and room, this appearance is not merely a surface impression but a fact. There are homes, it is true, but there are many, many boarding houses. Nob Hill, where once there lived practically no one but aristocrats, has now been given over to another class of men.

Golden Gate Park, a garden of beauty that is almost semitropical, dominates the upper city as does Market Street the business section. The city is proud of the park, justly proud. The hills it crowns were once a barren waste of sands, blown by the shifting winds, desolate, ugly and foreboding. Water and work have wrought the change, have made them "blossom like the rose." Smooth drives curve through great tunnels of green and past gorgeously colored flowers, while here and there is glimpsed a stately building. The park ends at the beach, the beach whose lights shine out to sea at night, but the road again sweeps upward to the rim of the cliffs that border the Pacific. The grounds of a military post are entered, where great guns lie well concealed, the guardians that America prays may never be called into life. The Golden Gate, its waters gleaming in the sunlight, lies stretched before the vision. The waves beat back and forth between the points of rock—ahead the open sea; the city and the bay behind. San Francisco is proud, beautiful and young; the western portal of America; the gateway to the East; a token of the past and a proud pledge of that which is to come.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY S. E. KISER

I like a morning that is fair,
I like a good road that is long;
When June-time fragrance fills the air
I fail to find that much is wrong;
I like to sit beside a stream
And hear the music of its flow,
And now and then I like to dream
Of scenes that pleased me long ago.

In early Autumn there are charms
That make a strong appeal to me;
The fruitful orchards, and the farms
With bulging barns are good to see,
And when the grapes hang purple in
Abundance where the vines remain
My thoughts turn joyously from sin,
Romance uplifts my soul again.

I like the wrosty mornings when
There's wine in every breath I take
It seems to me that only then
My mind is thoroughly awake;
With springy steps I go my way
Prepared for any turn of chance,
My fancy free, my spirit gay,
An eager challenge in my glance.

I like the seasons, each and all,
I like the sunsets and and the dawns;
I like the cricket's pensive call
When dead leaves blow across the lawns;
To me the world seems simply great
My blessing on it is bestowed;
About the only things I hate
Are reckless fools who hog the road.

Stranger Than Fiction

BY DR. CHARLES FLEISCHER

Another of those truth-stranger-than-fiction stories was told in the newspapers recently. And it brings up a question of "honor" which you will find it worth while to discuss.

The daughter of a Georgian was betrothed to a young man. The prospective father-in-law took the suitor into his confidence and confessed himself an escaped convict.

Practically he made the youth his priest in the Church of Humanity. At any rate, he wanted the boy to know the truth before marrying his daughter.

It appears that J. R. Forrester—whose right name is Hall and who had become a substantial resident of Florida—had, ten years before, been convicted of murdering a man in Georgia.

Sentenced to be hanged, the plea of wife and friends secured a commutation to life imprisonment.

He managed to escape to Florida, assumed a new name, proved the essential integrity of his character and, a la Jean Valjean, won the respect of his fellows.

And now he is bask in Georgia, a member of the convict camp, to serve out his life sentence.

* * *

The one-time suitor is evidently descended from the stern Roman who condemned his own son to death, for it was his betrayal that caused Hall's return to the chain gang.

Trusting to the suitor's honor, and himself too honorable to deceive the young man, the fugitive from justice is the victim of his generous confidence.

With philosophic spirit, he says: "I would rather spend twenty years on the gang than to have my daughter marry a man who betrayed me."

* * *

Frankly, this writer's sympathies are with Hall. But how do YOU feel about it? For certainly there are conflicting aspects to this situation.

After all, the man is guilty of murder. His life belongs to the State. Even a priest is supposed not to harbor a criminal. This young man owed his State the duty to co-operate with justice.

But he was supposed to be a lover. Her father's deed should not have affected a genuine love for the daughter.

Human chivalry should have helped him to a finer decision. Hall's confession, under the circumstances, proved him to be above murder and that his soul was purged of crime.

* * *

A deeply honorable spirit in the young man would have responded to the depths of honor in the other.

A complex question. Think it over. Talk it over. Perhaps you can feel your way to God's ways that are higher than man's ways.

What would YOU have done in Hall's place—and in the place of the young man?

The Psychology Of Cities

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

How wonderfully the impressions of historic events are vivified by the sight and touch of the places where they occurred! I spent a couple of days recently in the old French city of Nantes, the metropolis of Bretagne, where the terrible crime of the "noyades"—i. e., wholesale "drownings"—was committed in 1793, during the Reign of Terror that smirched the great and just cause of the French revolution.

Exactly what it was that suggested this manner of death torture to Carrier, the infernal emissary of the Terrorists in Paris, I do not know, but with it he indelibly stained the history of Nantes and the name of the beautiful river Loire, whose waters, in many enchained channels, flow through and around the city on their way to the nearby seas.

A psychologist might try to trace an occult connection between the crime of the "noyades," and another dark chapter in the history of Nantes, which is associated with a past phase of America, viz., the slave trade, on which much of the commercial prosperity of Nantes was based—"a scandalous source of riches," says a French writer. After the outlawry of this trade, vessels carrying slaves, upon finding themselves too closely pressed by pursuing cruisers, used to throw their slaves overboard, in order to get rid of the proofs.

In Nantes I read an account by Emile Souvestre of his acquaintance with one of the last of the slave traders, who continued to carry on the traffic until ruin overtook them.

Calling one evening at the house of this man, one of the costliest residences of Nantes, Souvestre found him with his wife and young children—but he seemed disturbed in mind. He had, in fact, just been telling his wife that his last slave ship, pursued by an English corvette, had thrown its cargo overboard to avoid being caught in contravention. But two little negroes who had hidden away while they were drowning their mother had remained in the ship.

The young wife listened to these details while dancing her latest-born in her arms. When her husband had finished: "I beg you to renounce this commerce, my dear," she said in a soft, supplicating voice. I had risen to go away, but at this I stopped. "Well and good!" I cried; "you are a mother, and you understand."

"Of course," she replied tranquilly, "for if he should keep on our children would be ruined."

It is in such things that we find the touchstone of humanity. Upon the happy white mother, with her children at her knee and embracing her neck, the picture of that terrible crime at sea made no impression except one of regret that the infamous source of revenue which had surrounded her and her children with luxury had been destroyed. Truly, the "unpardonable sin" must be unmitigated egoism.

Souvestre in his books pointed out the location of the homes of the slave merchants, then the finest in Nantes, since torn down or declassed, and I could not help looking for them, as one looks for the scene of a tragedy. They together with the supreme atrocity of Carrier's "drownings," clouded the city for me, in spite of its many remarkable and noble artistic possessions, with a certain darkness not to be driven off.

I wonder that some novelist, or romancer, has not taken one of these old houses, and the rich family that possessed it, both dependencies and products of the 'black trade' (traite des noirs), and built upon them a story as fascinating in tragic details and as effect've in conscience-shaking power as Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It is a curious fact that on the bookstall in the Nantes railroad station I saw a new edition of a French translation of Mrs. Stowe's imperishable book.

Carrier's crime is a master lesson in the darkest phases of psychology. It gains pre-eminence in its kind because of its association with the most dramatic of all revolutions, effected by the most dramatically-gifted of modern peoples. We talk and read much now about the atrocities of the Russian revolution, but their perpetrators did not possess like the "drowner" of Nantes qualities that would have caused De Quincey to rank them high among the masters of "murder as a fine art." Many of the things done by Carrier are not describable here, but they can be found described with more or less detail in any of the works on "The Terror." His "joke" of the "marriages republicains" stamped the measure of his soul.

Marco Polo

O, Marco Polo, sturdy man,
Of stuff that you and I
Might think of but we hardly can
Compete before we die!

He took a stroll ten thousand miles
And left his wife at home
To win the sing-song maiden's smiles
Half round the world from Rome.

'Tis said the longest way he took,
Where naught but camels go,
O'er desert, hills, through stream and brook and Himalaya's snow.

When he arrived in Far Cathay,
This husky drew a prize—
For Kublai Kahn that very day
Bestowed him fourteen wives.

And so in hist'ry, it is said,
A place at Court had he,
For thirty years betimes he strayed
Along the China Sea.

Till finally he longed for change,
And homeward set his course.
To leave those days one could arrange
Without e'en a divorce.

But Kublai was a crafty bird,
Whose life was full of spice.
From Marco's wives the plan he heard
And smote him once or twice!

When Marco sent his P.P.C.'s
And chits to friends to town—
Prepared to sail off on the seas—
Then Kublai's trap was thrown.

So Marco tarried for a spell—
A tough old dog was he—
And then again he worked like —— well,
He soon slipped off to sea!

Sailed down the coast one windy day
And left his wives to cry;

He tacked around by India,
Without e'en a good bye!

Old Kublai tried to imitate
The ship and so he built,
With all the wealth within his state,
A fleet "armed to the hilt."

But Marco made his get-away
With loot that filled his trunks;
Left Kublai's ships until this day
A fine old fleet of junks.

Still sailing on the China coast,
With cannon at the rail,
They're not today of much to boast,
Gadzooks, but they can sail!

They're of the lines Columbus drew
When cribbed he Marco's plans;
And followed Marco's trvels too,
But struck uncharted lands.

And so, you see, 'twas Marco who
Reversed the roads to Rome
And paved the way for me— and you,
To get away from Home.

Now China honors Marco's name,
In temple of Lo Han,
With bronzed Five Hundred Gods of Fame,
You'll find him in Canton.

1923. JOHN KYOTO.

The following have been elected as members of the Association:

Mrs. W. E. Keylock, Mrs. H. R. Everall, Mrs. H. Fowler, Miss M. McDonald, Miss Iris Boyd, Miss F. A. Walker.

"YE OLDE ENGLISH FAYRE"

Preparations for the Fayre are progressing rapidly and the energy displayed by the section leaders and their helpers is a good augury for the success of the venture.

SPORTS SECTION

This section which is arranging all outdoor side-shows, is exceptionally busy just now and is responsible for the Roundabouts, chutes, distorting mirrors, etc. as well as the cocoanut shies, Aunt Sallies and "Houpla" booths. Small gifts suitable as prizes for these entertainments would be much appreciated and should be sent to Mrs. R. F. C. Master, 663 Avenue Foch.

"OLDE CURIOSITY SHOPPE"

Mrs. E. H. McMichael and Mrs. E. T. Byrne would be glad of contributions to this stall. Articles of every description, old or new, ornamental or useful would be very welcome and should be sent to them c-o Messrs. F. C. Heffer and Co. 62 Kiangse Road.

The following members would be grateful for gifts of sweets either home-made or of the bought variety.

Mrs. MacGillivray, 34 Scott Road.

Mrs. Dowie, 26 Garter Road.

Mrs. McNichol, 17 Kinnear Road.

"FAYRE BOOKE"

"Ye Olde English Fayre Booke" will soon be out and should prove a very interesting publication to those connected with the B. W. A. and to the public generally. Printed on beautiful paper and with an attractive cover, it contains articles by Judge Grain, Phyllis Ayrton, Ruth Benedit and Mrs. Green as well as many poems and stories, etc. by members of the Association. An interesting feature will be the views of husbands on the subject of the B. W. A., also an acrostic by a well known member which carries a prize of $20.00 for the fortunate person who finds the correct solution. These items together with a short history of the Association, the reports of the different sections and the delightful illustrations by "Sapajou" and Edmund Toeg all go to make a most fascinating book. Apart from its attractive literary contents it will contain a complete program of the Fayre and will well repay the small sum expended on its purchase.

"FAYRE MEETING"

There will be a meeting at Headquarters on Monday the 16th at 5 p.m. and as this is the last general meeting and there is much to be discussed before the final arrangements can be made, all Section leaders and their helpers are earnestly requested to attend.
